

Peter Garrett wants to heritage list the Kimberley

Pastoralists' beef: As much as 17 million hectares of the Kimberley could be put on the national heritage list, sparking fears new restrictions will cripple the beef industry. The Environment Minister's plan to list the area, which would take in Broome, Fitzroy Crossing and Derby, as well as pastoral land responsible for 30 per cent of WA's beef cattle production, is naive, pastoralists say