

Greens go local for the election

ANNABELLE Sandes is looking forward to addressing local issues if elected to the Kimberley seat at next month's election.

Running for the Greens, Ms Sanders said the party was concerned with oil and gas developments, protection of wild rivers and addressing housing shortages across the region.

"We're keen to keep the gas processing hub off the coast of Broome, I think the hub would bring a huge environmental change for the Kimberley and social costs," she said.

She said ensuring direct access to health care, implementing appropriate development options and responsible land management were on her campaign agenda.

The Citizens Electoral Council has also nominated a candidate for the Kimberley seat.

However, candidate James Ockerby was not able to be contacted before time of print.
