

Kimberley LNG hub

MR Barnett, what are you doing? North Head? Have you ever been to the Kimberley? Have you ever spent a week or so, strolling any of the deserted beaches in that far north-west area?

[Have you] seen the mother humpbacks and their babies breaching in the morning sunrise? How about raised your children up here, and lived with the country, like my family and I do?

No...you haven't. You are going to take away so much more than land from our people.

This place is our identity, our livelihoods, and the future for our children, and their children. All for money and greed. How about tourism, solar power, wind power, or other environmentally safe power options?

Go back to your desk, push your pens and papers, and my family and I will go on with our little lives, and watch you destroy what means the world to us. You will be sorry, once you destroy it, it cannot be given back. And I will be sorry too, so sorry.

LET'S get real about the [Kimberley] area. It is desolate, hot, dusty, scrubby, and unpleasant.

Its saving grace is that the Kimberley is enormous in size. So one development like this will mean that millions of square kilometres will remain pristine and untouched. Some of the people crying about saving this pristine environment should actually go there; preferably by foot so they see the reality of the country.

After you have walked through the heat and the dust and the flies from Broome to North Head, or swum across from Derby fighting the sharks and crocodiles, then you'll be better qualified to talk about it.
